Digipay & Digicard

a fintech brand transformation — from the platform identity down to a card people carry every day.

brand

Starting as Brand Executive and, after two promotions, advancing to Creative and Executive Brand Manager, I was responsible for brand behavior and identity across the entire organization, leading a team of seven including designers, coordinators, and the execution team.

Working with a design-thinking approach and in strategic collaboration with the Digikala Group, we redesigned the logo and articulated the "From Pay to Power" narrative — one that treats the logo not as a decorative element but as a forward moto. The Persian tagline moved from "Toward Better Days" to "Powered by You," and the brand tone shifted from corporate to friendly and modern; this system later extended to the B2B sub-brand and employer brand with the tagline "Leap In."

02 — Digicard

Product brand ·
naming · card design
· launch

A year and a half of work across Digipay's product, engineering and marketing teams to design, build and ship a credit product people hold in their hand.

Design here was never a visual output. It was a multi-sensory experience — the card's finish, the unboxing, built to communicate simplicity, trust and quality at the same time.

OUTCOME

One brand system now governs the app, the card , retail signage, exhibition design and employee recruitment — all in one creative & Identity direction.

FURTHER SELECTED WORK

FORGE ORIGINATION

M&A advisory brand system 2025

A buy-side advisory in the lower middle market, briefed through FUNDAMENTAL for a full brand book. Rather than illustrate deals, I built the system from one physical metaphor: the forge — heat as the force that changes the shape of things.

The tagline, “Heat makes things move,” anchors four written personality traits that guide copy and tone: Pragmatic, Market Expert, Straight Shooter, Catalyst.

Delivered: brand book · identity directions.

BAREESTA

Steel structures
visual identity 2024

Bespoke steel structures — cold-formed beams, welded frames, engineering delivered as a service. The wordmark carries a custom ligature at its centre: the E and E interlock into a bracket-like form that doubles as a structural joint. The ligature extends into a standalone mark.
